

Abstract

Methods for assaying a cellular pathway, and more particularly a β -catenin-related pathway, are disclosed. The assays of the invention utilize particular host cells with desired β -catenin pathway elements, and results in the identification of biologically
5 active phenotypic probes and cellular targets and fragments, variants and mimetics thereof.

103